Bob Taft – Governor
Ann Womer Benjamin – Director

From Ohio Governor Bob Taft and Ohio Department of Insurance Director Ann Womer Benjamin:

Understanding auto insurance coverage is an important part of owning an automobile. An automobile is a significant investment, one that needs to be properly protected. The different types and amounts of coverage available can seem overwhelming.

The Ohio Department of Insurance has produced this Ohio Shopper's Guide to Auto Insurance to help you navigate the purchase of auto insurance and take away the mystery so that you may secure the affordable protection you need.

This guide describes the different policies available to Ohio auto owners and breaks down the underlying factors that go into the coverage and pricing available for your car. You will also find information on what to do if you are in an accident, ways to lower your insurance premiums and the rights and responsibilities of you and insurance carriers.

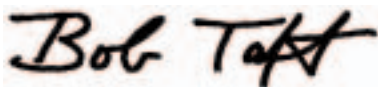

Auto insurance companies provide sample premiums to the Department that are based on the type of policy, the amount of coverage offered and where you live. Charts near the back of this guide show this information for each company, along with contact information. These samples and other comparisons are designed to give you, the insurance consumer, guidance in choosing and comparing your policy coverage and cost.

You will also find in this guide a comparison of consumer complaints the Department of Insurance has received about auto insurance companies. It is just as important for all consumers to be comfortable with the companies to which they are entrusting the protection of their automobiles and families as it is to obtain the best coverage at competitive premiums.

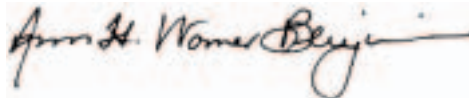

If you have questions or need additional information, the Consumer Services Division of the Ohio Department of Insurance is ready to help you. Most questions or issues can be addressed by one of the department's many experts or referred for proper assistance. You can reach Consumer Services of the Ohio Department of Insurance at 1-800-686-1526 or by logging onto www.ohioinsurance.gov.

Enjoy your car or truck and remember - the Ohio Department of Insurance is here to help you with questions or problems you may have!

Sincerely,

Bob Taft

Chapter 1: Auto Insurance Rights and Responsibilities

Are Ohio Drivers and Owners Required to Purchase Insurance?

The state of Ohio does not require drivers to buy car insurance. However, Ohio does require you to have a guaranteed way to pay for injuries or damages that result from your negligence or the negligence of anyone operating an auto you own. That guarantee is called "proof of financial responsibility." Under Ohio's Financial Responsibility (FR) Law, you have many choices. Go to www.bmv.ohio.gov/FR_Requirements.html for a list of these options. For additional information, contact the Ohio Bureau of Motor Vehicles (BMV).

Most drivers only have one real choice – to buy liability insurance. Liability insurance and the minimum amount you must buy are explained on page 6.

Why Is My Insurance I.D. Card Important?

Until 1995, you only had to prove you were insured when you were in an accident or went to court.

Then lawmakers put some teeth in Ohio's FR law. Your insurance company must now give you an "insurance identification card." This card shows when your liability insurance coverage starts and when it expires.

Ohio law requires you to show your insurance I.D. card to any police officer who stops you for a traffic violation or safety check. Additionally, you should take the card to court if you're cited for a traffic ticket or have been in an accident.

It is important to keep your insurance I.D. card in your car's glove box. Make sure everyone who drives the car knows where it is!

What Happens If I Misplace My Insurance Identification Card?

If you're unable to show the police officer your I.D. card or some other proof of financial responsibility, the officer will write that on the ticket. You will have another chance to show proof of FR when you pay the ticket or go to court.

What Happens If I Drive Without FR?

If you are caught driving without FR you will soon be walking. The penalties can include:

- Suspension of driver's license for a minimum of 90 days and up to two years
- Impoundment of your license plates and/or your automobile
- Court costs
- No driving privileges during suspension

Rights
and
Responsibilities

What Are My Policy Responsibilities?

You have a responsibility to fill out the insurance application with complete and accurate information, remembering to list all licensed drivers in your household. After signing the application, you should receive a binder from the agent. You can use this as proof of coverage until you receive your policy and insurance I.D. card.

You should report any changes that affect your policy, including changes in names, addresses, drivers or the use of your car to your agent or company.

What Are My Premium Rights?

You have the right to a fair estimate (quotation) of premium, even though the actual premium may be more or less than the quoted estimate. You may be entitled to a refund if the company charges a premium which the Ohio Department of Insurance has not approved and you have paid too much for the policy.

You have the right to cancel your policy if your agent mistakenly quotes the wrong premium for any reason.

What Are My Policy Rights?

You have the right to receive a copy of your policy, and you may request copies of all forms and applications you or the agent sign. You cannot be discriminated against because of your race, national origin, beliefs or a physical handicap that does not impair your driving ability.

What Are My Premium Responsibilities?

You have a responsibility to keep track of your policy renewal date. Most companies will send you a bill at least 30 days before the renewal date. You are also responsible for paying premiums by the due date, even if you are in a dispute with the insurance company. If you do not pay, the company has the right to cancel your policy.

What Are My Renewal And Cancellation Rights?

The company is required to issue or mail you a written notice before your policy is cancelled or not renewed and to state the reasons for the cancellation or non-renewal. Every auto policy must be issued for a period of no less than two years or guaranteed renewable for successive policy periods totaling at least two years.

What Are My Claims Rights Under My Policy?

You have the right to choose which shop will repair your car, unless this right is limited by your policy. You are entitled to a prompt and good-faith settlement offer based on the terms of your policy and to negotiate with the insurance company's adjuster.

You have the right to reject any settlement offer that you find unacceptable and use any arbitration procedures provided in your policy.

Rights

and

Responsibilities

Unfair acts: If you feel an agent or an insurance company has deceived you, acted unfairly or violated the law, you have the right to call the Ohio Department of Insurance. You can file a written complaint with the Department's Office of Consumer Services. Call 1-800-686-1526.

Insurance tip: Protect yourself by accurately completing the application and keeping a copy.

What Are My Claims Responsibilities?

Never file phony, padded or fraudulent claims that ask the company to pay for losses that did not occur. Filing fraudulent claims is a crime and could land you in jail!

It is your responsibility to promptly report any accidents or other losses to your insurance agent or company by following the procedures in your policy. You must provide all information requested by the company, agent or adjuster.

Be aware of your rights under the policy and negotiate with the adjuster when you believe the settlement offer is below what the policy requires. Conversely, you may be required to pay for any losses that exceed the limits of your policy.

It is also your responsibility to immediately inform the company of any claims or lawsuits that could require payment by your company.

Rights
and
Responsibilities

Chapter 2: Auto Insurance Options and Coverages

What Is A Declarations Page?

When you get your automobile insurance policy, the top page is normally the Declarations Page or "Dec Page." The Dec Page shows what the policy covers, as well as the premium you must pay for those coverages. Some companies will not send you a new policy every year. Instead, you may only receive a new Dec Page. The sample shown here will give you an idea of what you'll see on your Dec Page.

Sample Declarations Page

Policyholder: Your name and address
 Policy Number: Your policy number
 Policy Period: From start date to end date

The end date is often six months from the start date if the required premium for this period has been paid. Each period begins and ends at 12:01 a.m. (standard time) at the address of the policyholder, unless otherwise specified in your policy.

Coverages

Liability Coverage

What Is Covered When I Am At Fault?

When you're at fault, liability insurance pays on your behalf for the other person's injuries or death and their property damage. Your liability coverage will also pay for your legal defense if you are sued.

Who Is Covered?

- You (the car owner)
- Your family members who live with you
- In general, any licensed driver you allow to drive your car (but read your policy - it could rule out this provision)

Sample Limit of Liability Language

- A. Our limit of liability for loss will be the lesser of the
1. Actual cash value of the stolen or damaged property; or
 2. Amount necessary to repair or replace the property.
- B. An adjustment for depreciation and physical condition will be made in determining actual cash value at the time of loss.

What Is Bodily Injury Liability (BI)?

Bodily injury liability coverage pays for injury or death to others when the driver of your car is at fault in an accident. Policies may have two limits:

Options

- The amount paid for injuries for any one person's injuries, and
- The total amount for all persons injured in the accident.

and

Example

If you are at fault in an accident and your BI limits are 50/100, your insurer will cover personal injuries up to $50,000 for each person injured, but only up to a total of $100,000 for all persons involved in the accident.

Coverages

A "single limit" policy will pay up to the limit even if only one person is injured, as well as property damage. A "split limit" policy separates amounts that apply to bodily injury and property damage.

What Is Property Damage Liability (PD)?

Property damage liability coverage pays for damage your car causes to other people's property.

What Is Medical Payments (MedPay) Coverage?

Medical payments coverage pays medical bills for you or your passengers after an accident. It also covers medical expenses if you or family members are pedestrians and are hit by a car.

How Much Coverage Do I Need?

Ohio law requires that drivers purchase minimum amounts of insurance. Drivers must carry at least

- Bodily injury coverage: $12,500 per person; $25,000 per accident, and
- Property damage coverage: $7,500 per accident

Warning! The amounts shown above are BARE MINIMUMS. You'd need a lot more insurance to pay for a bad crash! Your insurance agent can help you purchase insurance coverage appropriate to your unique situation.

Do I Need Financial Protection against Uninsured And Under-Insured Motorists (UM/UIM)?

Coverage for uninsured and underinsured motorists (UM/UIM) is a good idea. Despite Ohio's FR law, there remain thousands of uninsured drivers. As many as 20 percent of Ohio drivers break the FR law, and in some parts of the state the percentage is higher.

At the same time there are even more underinsureds. An underinsured car owner has enough insurance to meet Ohio's FR law but not enough to pay for serious injuries. No matter how much insurance a driver has, there could be accidents where it's not enough.

This means that you may not receive enough (or any) money to cover your injuries or property damage if you are involved in an accident where an uninsured or under-insured motorist is at fault. As such, you can purchase UM/UIM coverage to financially protect yourself if this happens to you.

What is UM/UIM Coverage?

When you buy liability insurance, your insurance agent or company may offer you UM/UIM coverage.

This coverage

- Takes the place of the liability coverage the other driver did not have
- Pays for injuries to you and your passengers when the other driver did not have enough insurance to pay for your injuries

If you purchase this coverage, you cannot buy more coverage for UM/UIM than you have for liability coverage. Ohio law does not allow you to protect yourself better than you protect others.

Note: The insurance agent or company may include UM/UIM when quoting a premium, but you may have the right to either ask for a lower amount or refuse it completely.

Is There Insurance That Covers Property Damage Caused By An Uninsured Motorist?

Yes. A separate type of UM coverage, called UMPD, pays for physical damages to property caused by an uninsured driver. However, since collision and UMPD pay for the same damages, you don't need UMPD if you have collision coverage

Why Should I Buy Uninsured Motorists (UM) Coverage If I Have A Good Health Insurance Policy?

In addition to medical bills, UM can pay other expenses related to your injuries, including

- Pain and suffering
- Lost wages

Options

and

Coverages

What Should I Do If I Have An Accident With An Uninsured Motorist?

It is very important to file an accident report with the police after an accident with an uninsured driver and contact your insurance company.

What is Physical Damage Coverage?

There are two kinds of physical damage coverage. They are usually sold separately but some companies package them as a single coverage.

- Collision pays for repairs to your car when it hits another vehicle, crashes into something or turns over. It pays regardless of who causes the accident.
- Comprehensive pays for losses that result from incidents that are not collisions, such as theft, fire, vandalism, hail, falling objects or hitting an animal.

Am I Required to Purchase Collision and Comprehensive Coverage?

No, these coverages are not required by law. Therefore, you must decide whether you can afford to pay the repair bill or replace your car if it is totaled or stolen.

Remember: The insurance company will not pay you more than the car is worth on the market. If you have an old clunker, the insurance could cost more than the car is worth.

Options

and

Coverages

What Is Forced Placement?

If your car is financed, the lender will require physical damage protection for the car. If you do not insure the car, the lender may buy the insurance and add the cost to your loan. This is called forced placement. It's expensive and protects the lender, but not you!

Protect yourself and buy your own policy!

Chapter 3: Deductibles, Premiums and Rate Regulation

What Is A Deductible?

The deductible is the amount you must pay out of your own pocket every time you have a claim for loss or damage to your car. Deductibles are tied to annual physical damage coverage, collision and comprehension. Each coverage on your policy usually requires a separate deductible.

Companies generally offer a range of deductibles. Higher deductibles mean lower premiums.

How Do Companies Establish The Price Of Auto Insurance?

The overall cost of auto insurance is affected by certain costs the insurance pays for including

- Medical care for persons injured in accidents,
- Auto repair, theft and fraud,
- Defending lawsuits against insureds, and
- Administrative expenses.

The company has the right to charge enough to recover those costs and make a reasonable profit.

How Does The Company Decide The Amount Of My Premium?

Each company has many different premiums. They are based on the company's prediction of how much you and other drivers "like" you will cost the company by filing claims.

Insurance companies base their rates on statistics.

- The companies have analyzed statistical information about millions of drivers and they have identified characteristics of drivers who are more likely to have losses for which the company would have to pay.
- For rating purposes, the company will group you together with other people whose age, sex, residence and experience are similar to yours.
- Some companies also use the driver's credit history when determining a premium

How Can I Lower My Premium?

You might be able to lower your premiums by

- Driving safely
- Increasing your deductibles
- Dropping collision and/or comprehensive on an old car
- Qualifying for discounts
- Shopping for a better deal
- Lowering limits of liability

Are Insurance Rates Regulated By The State?

The Ohio Department of Insurance regulates but does not set auto insurance rates. When a company wants to change its rates, it must file supporting data with the department. The Department's rate experts review the data to make sure the new rates are justified.

What are some typical factors companies use to set rates?

- Where you live: city residents tend to have more accidents. Auto insurance prices are generally higher in cities than in rural areas. Rates are also higher in some cities than others. In general you will pay higher premiums if you live in an area where claims are higher.

Deductibles,

Premiums

and

Rate Regulation

- Your age, sex and marital status: young, single, male drivers generally have the highest accident rates and pay the highest prices. After (approximately) age 26, the differences are usually smaller.
- Your driving record: prices are lowest when you've had no tickets or accidents.
- How you use the car: you pay more if you drive to work than if you just use the car for pleasure.
- Your car: physical damage coverage is based on what it would cost the company to repair or replace your car. The more expensive the car, the more it generally costs to insure.

If I Buy A New Automobile, Will My Rates Change?

Depending on the type of car you purchase, your rates could increase dramatically. It's always wise to call your insurance agent before you buy a new car, making sure you tell the agent exactly what you plan to buy and about any tickets or accidents.

If your car is on the insurance company's restricted list, the company may either charge more or turn you down.

Can My Insurance Company Raise My Premiums If I Am Involved In An Accident?

Your premium can go up if you cause an accident. The company can raise ("surcharge") your premium if you are at fault in an accident or if you get several traffic tickets.

But, you should not be surcharged for a minor moving violation or a single accident that was not your fault. Premiums can not change until your next renewal date.

What Is A High-Risk Driver?

A "high-risk" driver is one who the insurance company believes has a high likelihood of having accidents. One company may consider you high risk, but another may not. You could be classified as a high-risk driver for the reasons below.

- Poor driving record (accidents, tickets)
- Uninsured for more than 30 days

What Other Factors Could Make It Harder To Find Insurance?

- Bad credit rating
- Inexperienced driver
- Occupation (e.g. bartenders)

Who Insures High-Risk Drivers?

Numerous companies specialize in selling insurance to people that other companies will not accept. See pages 27-36 for sample premiums from companies that specialize in insuring higher risks.

What If No Company Will Insure Me?

If your driving record is so bad that even the high-risk companies will not insure you, an agent can help you apply to the Ohio Automobile Insurance Plan. (Auto Plan)

The Auto Plan is required by state law to guarantee you can buy liability coverage. Your insurance will be placed with a company at rates that could be higher than even the high-risk companies rates.

For information call the Ohio Auto Plan at (614) 221-2596.

How Long Do Accidents And Tickets Count Against Me?

Different companies have different rules. Many do not consider incidents that are more than three years old, but some auto insurers will look back as far as five years.

Deductibles,

Premiums

and

Rate Regulation

Will The Company Automatically Lower My Premium After Three Years Of Safe Driving?

It depends on the company. Periodically ask your insurer to review your premium to make sure you are getting the best rate possible. Also, as your driving record improves, it may be time to start shopping for a better deal.

Are Household Rates Affected By A High-Risk Driver?

Maybe. Most insurance companies assume every licensed driver in your household could drive your car. So even if only one of the family's five drivers has a bad driving record, the other four may wind up paying higher rates.

Can My Insurer Cancel My Policy?

During the first 89 days after you purchase a policy, the company can cancel it for almost any reason.

As of the 90th day, your liability coverage is protected from cancellation for two years. At the end of each two-year period, the policy may be legally nonrenewed.

The law has specific grounds permitting cancellation during the two year protected period, including

- Lying on your application,
- Suspension or revocation of your driver's license,
- Filing false claims, and
- Not paying your premiums.

Your risk when switching companies: You are not protected from cancellation until you have had the policy for 90 days. Speeding tickets, accidents or filing claims during the first 89 days could result in quick cancellation.

Is My Insurer Required to Renew My Policy?

No. The insurance company can refuse to renew the policy for almost any reason at the end of each two-year period. However, if this happens you still have the right to receive proper notice of the nonrenewal.

Is The Insurer Required to Notify Me If My Policy Is Cancelled or Non-Renewed?

The company must send you written notice 30 days before it cancels or nonrenews a policy. The notice must explain

- The reason the policy is being cancelled or nonrenewed,
- The information on which the termination is based, and
- Your right to have the Ohio Department of Insurance review the cancellation.

Exception: Unless your policy specifically states otherwise, you do not have a right to 30-day notice if your coverage is cancelled because you missed a payment. However, the law does require at least a 10-day notice.

Deductibles,

Premiums

and

Rate Regulation

What Might My Company Do If My Driving Record Deteriorates?

The company can transfer your policy to an affiliated company, which is part of or owned by the same company and covers high-risk drivers. If this happens, you would probably receive a big premium increase.

If you reject the offer to transfer, the company can cancel your policy. The company also could nonrenew your policy at the end of your two year policy period.

What Happens If My Premium Payment Is Late?

Unless your policy specifically grants you a grace period, there is no grace period for late premium payments on auto insurance. If you're late on a payment, the company has the choice of accepting or rejecting your payment. Therefore, it's possible that if your payment is due on July 5, you might have no insurance if the check gets to the company on July 6. Some companies send bills that double as cancellation notices.

Why Are Premiums So High For Young Drivers Who Have Never Had An Accident?

Insurance rates are based on statistical groups. As a group, teenage drivers have a much higher accident rate than older drivers.

Older

Why Do I Have To Pay More For My Son Than My Daughter? She's The One Who Had A Speeding Ticket!

Driver

As a group, young male drivers have the highest accident rates of all. That means they pay the highest premiums.

Discount

Is There A Premium Discount For Older Drivers?

You can earn a discount on your auto insurance premium if you are age 60 or older.

To qualify for the discount, you must:

- Be older than 60 and pass an accident prevention course,
- Provide the insurance company with a certificate proving you have passed the course, and
- Have a satisfactory driving record, your insurer may consider your driving record for the prior three years.

Once you qualify for a discount, it is good for three years. Every three years you may have to take another driving class and pass the exams again to renew the discount.

How Much Of A Premium Discount Can Older Drivers Receive?

The law permits every company to set its own discounts. Most companies have a discount of either 5 percent or 10 percent - other discounts are as low as 2 percent, or as high as 15 percent.

Companies are allowed to give discounts on only the premium for your liability coverage. Therefore, your company might offer a 10 percent discount on liability coverage, but because you also have comprehensive and collision coverage, you would not see a full 10 percent reduction in your total premium.

Credit Scoring

Statistically, people who have a poor insurance credit score are more likely to file a claim. Insurers use this information when determining the risk someone may pose. Actuarial studies reveal that the manner which a person manages his or her finances is a strong predictor of insurance claims. Insurance scores are used to help insurers differentiate between lower and higher insurance risks and they then can set a premium based on the risk they are assuming.

Information regarding your credit history, such as your bill-paying habits, the number and the types of accounts in your name, collection actions, outstanding debt, and the age of your accounts, is used to determine if you are a responsible borrower.

What Is A Certified Accident Prevention Course?

These are classes conducted by private companies or organizations, but must be approved by the Ohio Bureau of Motor Vehicles (BMV). The course and exam must include

- At least eight hours of classroom instruction (no correspondence courses),
- A driving test with backing, turning at intersections and stopping, and
- You must show you can control the car.

Shop around: Even without senior discounts, many companies include older drivers in their lowest rating categories.

Check the sample premiums for Driver E on pages 27-36.

Chapter 4: After An Accident

What Is Ohio's Comparative Negligence Law?

Ohio has had a comparative negligence law since 1980. This law says the responsibility for an accident can be shared. It affects how much you can collect from the other driver or their insurance company.

If a traffic accident happens because you do not use the amount of care that should be expected of a reasonable and prudent person under the circumstances, you could be considered negligent.

Even if another driver hit your car and was cited for the accident, it doesn't necessarily mean that he/she is completely at fault.

Under Ohio's comparative negligence law, the other driver can run into you and get a ticket; but, if you could have reasonably done something to avoid the accident, you might have to share the negligence and the expense for damages.

How Are Claims Investigated?

If you file a claim against another driver's insurance, the company will want to determine whether or not you should share the blame. To do this, the company will ask questions such as

- Did you see the other car before it swerved into your lane?
- If you hadn't been tuning the radio, could you have gotten out of his way?
- If you had been wearing a seatbelt would your injuries have been as bad?
- Was your car illegally parked?

After

an

Accident

What Happens If It Is Determined Both Parties Are At Fault? How Are Costs Divided?

Even if another driver hits your car, the insurance adjuster may still conclude that the accident or some of the damage or injuries could have been avoided if you had been more careful. He or she will try to "split the blame" between you and their insured.

Example 1: 80/20

Say the adjuster concludes that the other driver was 80 percent at fault; you were responsible for the other 20 percent. If the total property damage to your car was $1000, the company will offer to pay 80 percent of your damage, or $800.

However, if there was damage to the other driver's car, you or your insurance company will not be required to pay to repair costs for the other car. This is because the other driver's share of the negligence was more than 50 percent.

Example 2: 50/50

If the adjuster concludes that you were each equally at fault, neither of you will collect anything from the other's insurance company. If you disagree you can try to negotiate a better deal or take even take it to court.

Important: Companies are prohibited from using "pattern" settlements. That's the practice of disregarding the facts and assigning a routine percentage of negligence to anyone involved in an accident with a driver insured by the company.

Common Questions and Answers

Who Decides Comparative Negligence?

Negligence is a legal issue, and there is no formula for dividing the responsibility for an accident. When negligence is disputed, it takes a judge or jury to reach conclusions about comparative negligence that are legally binding.

However, most decisions about negligence in auto accidents are made by insurance companies and their claims adjusters.

What If I Disagree With The Adjuster's Numbers Regarding Fault?

Even if you accept the adjuster's conclusion that you were partly at fault, you do not have to accept the adjuster's numbers.

If the company says you were 30 percent at fault, ask how that percentage was determined. You have a right to get this information!

What If I Can't Settle With The Other Driver's Insurance Company?

If you can't settle with the other driver's company, you may decide to submit the claim to your own company but only if you have collision coverage.

After you pay your own collision deductible, your company settles the full claim with you and takes over your claim against the other company. This is called subrogation.

If your company collects from the other driver's company, the full amount of your deductible may be paid depending on your particular circumstances.

What Steps Should I Take In Order To Resolve A Dispute?

When working within the company, your first stop should be the adjuster. Adjusters evaluate damage and make settlement offers.

Consult the claims supervisor, if you believe the adjuster's position is unreasonable or unfair.

If the matter remains unresolved after speaking to the adjuster and claims supervisor, your policy may provide appraisal or arbitration options.

Remember: The Ohio Department of Insurance offers free information about your rights and how to proceed with a claim. Call 1-800-686-1526.

Can The Ohio Department of Insurance Help Me Resolve A Dispute With An Insurance Company?

The Department investigates written complaints to determine whether the company and agent have acted improperly with regard to your claim. However, the Department cannot settle factual disputes over who was at fault or how much the damage is worth.

What Is My Option If I Still Cannot Get A Satisfactory Resolution After Working With The Company?

Consider consulting an attorney whenever you need information about your legal rights and remedies.

You might also consider taking the matter to small claims court. Your county small claims court can settle disputes involving $3,000 or less. In a typical case, you would sue the other driver, not his or her insurance company.

When the only evidence is your word against the other driver's word, there's only one place to settle who pays...in court!

After

an

Accident

Auto

Repairs

How Is My Automobile Repaired?

The object of any repair is to restore your car to the same condition it was in immediately before the accident. The insurance company will choose the least expensive way to do this. For example, that may mean straightening a dented fender, installing a used one or replacing it with a new part.

The company will probably make you a settlement offer based on the estimated repair costs - although it could choose to repair the car itself.

How Much Money Will I Receive To Have My Automobile Repaired?

The insurance adjuster will propose a settlement based on the estimated cost of repairs and give you a copy of the estimate.

What If The Company's Estimate Is Too Low?

If you notify the company that its estimate is lower than estimates you've gotten yourself, the company has two choices:

- Pay the difference between your estimate and the company's estimate, or
- Give you the name of at least one shop that will repair your car for the amount of the company's estimate.

Insurance tip: If your insurance company requires you to use a specific repair shop, the company must guarantee the shop's work and assess no extra cost to you.

The Insurance Adjuster Recommended A Specific Body Shop, But I Prefer Another. What Are My Rights?

It's your car! You can have it repaired wherever you choose. However, regardless of what shop you choose, the adjuster will base your claim payment on market price for the repairs and pay the local average rates for parts and labor. You may pay extra if your shop charges more.

What Does It Mean If The Shop Is State-Certified?

To help promote fair competition between shops, Ohio established the Board of Motor Vehicle Collision Repair Registration. Ohio has required collision repair businesses to register since 1997. Look for a State of Ohio Certificate of Registration at any shop you consider.

Will The Adjuster Use The Cost Of New Or Used Parts To Prepare My Estimate?

The insurance company's repair estimate must disclose what kind of parts the estimate is based on. The estimate must tell you if

- The parts are new but were not made by the manufacturer of your car (generic or after-market parts). You will likely be entitled to new parts only if your car is the current model year.
- The parts are used but are of "like kind and quality" (this means they will be bought from a salvage dealer) - the estimate must identify the salvage dealer where the part can be bought for that price.

Are Generic or After-Market Parts Okay To Use?

There has been a lot of controversy over the use of generic parts. Your body shop may tell you they are inferior or don't fit like parts sold by the "original equipment manufacturer" (OEM).

Some policies make it clear that they will use generic parts when appropriate.

While you are definitely entitled to parts that fit, you'll have to prove that the generic parts are inferior.

Remember: You can still have OEM parts if you are willing to pay the difference in parts price.

When Is My Car Considered "Totaled?"

Your car will be considered a total loss when estimates conclude that it will be more expensive to repair the car than it would be to replace it.

How Much Will I Receive If My Car Is Considered Totaled?

Everything is based on the car's actual cash value (ACV). The ACV is what your car (including rust, dents, and any previous damage) was worth on the open market the moment before the accident. The ACV is NOT how much you owe on the car. If your car is totaled, the company has two choices. It can replace your car with one of "like kind and quality," or it can offer to settle with you for the car's cash value.

How Is The Actual Cash Value Calculated For A Cash Settlement?

The insurance company will use one of three methods to determine your car's actual cash value:

- The average cost of two or more comparable cars (make, model, year and condition) available in your area within the past 30 days,
- The average of two or more quotations from local dealers (if no cars were actually available) or
- A pricing service that has information about auto prices in the local market.

What Should I Know If My Insurer Offers A Replacement?

If the company offers a replacement, the replacement car must be

- The same make, same year (or newer) and have similar options and mileage to your car,
- In as good or better condition as your car before the loss,
- Available for inspection within a reasonable distance from your home and
- Free of all taxes and transfer fees.

Note: Insurance companies seldom offer replacements, even though the law allows it. Companies usually prefer to settle for cash.

What Is "Gap" Insurance?

Gap insurance helps pay your loan if your car is totaled and you owe more than the car is worth.

Example: You still owe $15,000 on your car loan. A crash totals the car and the insurance company pays you the car's market value, which is $12,500. Gap coverage would pay the difference ($2,500) between the car's value and what you owe.

What Happens After I Accept A Settlement Offer?

After accepting a settlement offer, you have 35 days to find a car like your old one that is priced within the settlement amount.

If you cannot find that car within 35 days, you have the right to reopen negotiations. Call the adjuster and give the location and prices of cars you have found. Work with the adjuster to either meet those prices or have him or her tell you where you can find a car at the settlement price.

What Happens If I Can't Make A Satisfactory Agreement With The Company?

Any time you negotiate with your company and you are simply unable to agree on a settlement, either you or the company can demand an "appraisal."

At that point, you and the company each designate a competent appraiser. The appraisers will appoint an umpire and independently evaluate your loss. The umpire will resolve any differences between the two appraisers.

If you and the company accept the appraisal, the results will be binding on both of you.

Can The Insurance Company Pay Me Less Than Blue Book For My Totaled Car?

Yes. The "Book" is only a guide. The company is only required to pay you what your car was actually worth (as a used car) the moment before the crash. The adjuster will find out how much used cars like yours (same make, model and year) are going for in your area.

Insurance Tip: Adjusters must verify prices with at least two sources. But, it's also a good idea for you to check car costs too.

What Should Be Included In The Amount The Company Pays Me For My Totaled Car?

The value of your car! Plus, if you're replacing the car within 30 days, you should also receive compensation for sales tax, title and license fees.

Chapter 5: More Common Questions And Answers

Who Pays For The Rental Car While My Car Is In The Body Shop?

If there is a liability claim against the other driver's company, the company should pay your rental car cost for a reasonable length of repair time.

If the car is totaled, many companies pay for your rental as a courtesy, but are not required to do so. Your use of a rental ends once a settlement has been offered.

If the claim is with your own company against your own policy, you must have rental reimbursement coverage. Most policies have a dollar limit for rental payments. Your rental car rights are spelled out in your policy.

Do I Need Extra Insurance When Renting A Car?

Car rental companies hold you responsible for any physical damage to the car while you're renting it, unless you pay extra for the collision damage waiver (CDW). CDW can add $5 or more to the daily rental charge.

If you have collision coverage on your own car, it may cover rentals. If it does, you may not want to buy CDW. Read your policy carefully to make sure there are no limits on when a rental is covered; if in doubt, check with your insurance agent or company. Some policies will pay for a rental only while your car is being repaired as the result of an accident but not when you are on vacation.

The Adjuster Agrees It Would Cost $500 To Replace The Stereo In My Car. Do I Have To Buy A Stereo With That Money Or Can I Use The Payout For Other Non-Related Expenses?

If you are collecting from the other driver's company, you're entitled to the cash. Do what you want with it.

However, if the claim is against your own company, it may not pay the full replacement cost until you actually buy the new stereo. If the stereo did not come with the car, you may need to show the company receipts to prove you had it in the first place.

When Should I Add My Teenage Child To My Policy?

Check with the agent or company about the right time to add the teenager to your policy. While your teenager is driving with a temporary (learner's) permit, your premiums might not be affected at all. However, once a teen becomes licensed your auto insurance premiums will go up, no matter how much he or she actually drives.

See Driver D in the charts on pages 27-36 for an idea of how much premiums can be.

Questions

and

Answers

The Agent Quoted Me A Good Price And Told Me I Was Covered. Now The Company Wants To Charge More. Is That Legal?

Probably. The agent must quote a rate that the company has on file with the Ohio Department of Insurance. However, the company makes the final decision about your rating classification after it reviews your background information. This could affect the price.

It is not legal for the agent intentionally to quote you an unrealistically low price to get your business. This is called low-balling and can be hard to prove.

Misquotes usually turn out to be the result of a mistake by the agent or incorrect information on your application. The best way to protect yourself is by completing the application accurately and keeping a copy.

My Son Has Left Home For College. Do I Still Have To Include Him On My Policy?

Yes. Insurance companies recognize that when college students come home they have access to the family car. The company may, however, reduce the premiums if the college is more than a specific distance (100 miles, for example) from your home.

I've Had Two Accidents And Neither One Was My Fault. Can The Company Raise My Premiums?

Probably. Premium increases are always more likely when an accident is your fault, but the company may have the right to raise your premiums if you have a second, not-at-fault accident within the experience period, usually three to five years.

I Sometimes Let A Friend Drive My Car. Is She Covered By My Policy?

Probably. Almost all liability policies will cover a licensed driver who drives with your permission. Conversely, your liability insurance generally will cover you if you drive a friend's car.

Beware: Some policies will state specifically that no other person is covered when driving your car. It's best to check before allowing a friend to drive your car.

Why Does The Insurance Company Put The Bank's Name On The Check For Repairing My Car?

The bank's name is on the check because your car is collateral for your loan. The bank (or whoever is financing the car) has an interest in making sure the money is used to repair the car and not for anything else.

An Uninsured Driver Demolished My Car! Who Pays?

Your collision coverage will cover the damages. Or your UMPD coverage (see page 7), if you bought it. Either way, you'll have to pay a deductible.

Questions

and

Who Pays If I Hit A Deer?

Your comprehensive coverage, but you will probably have to pay a deductible.

Where Do I Send My Medical And Hospital Bills After An Accident, To My Health Insurer Or To The Car Insurance Company?

The answer depends on your situation.

If you have a liability claim against another driver's liability policy, that policy will usually settle all claims with you. You are responsible for paying your medical bills.

If the liability insurance pays you for your injuries (either as a negotiated settlement or the result of a lawsuit), you will be expected to reimburse your health insurer for any accident-related expenses it already paid.

Most companies will not pay medical bills until you are ready to settle your full claim.

MedPay Claim

Your auto MedPay coverage is primary for any family members covered by both the health insurance and your auto policy. That means you send your claims to the auto insurer first and any balance to the health insurer. The company may pay you and expect you to pay the bills.

Your non-family passengers should file their claims first with your MedPay insurance and then with their health insurance.

I've Been Sued By The Other Driver. Will My Policy Cover That?

Yes. Your liability insurance covers lawsuits. Your company has a duty to provide a lawyer to represent you in lawsuits accusing you of negligence in driving your car.

If you receive a summons or notice of a lawsuit, notify your company right away. Next, the company will appoint a lawyer to represent you. Although the company pays for the lawyer, the lawyer's ethical duty is to represent your best interests, not the company's. There is no policy limit on how much the company must pay the lawyer to represent you.

If the case is settled or there is a judgment against you, the company will pay up to the policy limit. However, if the court judgment or settlement is more than your policy limits, you will have to pay the difference.

Important: The company may refuse to defend you if you are accused of intentionally injuring someone or intentionally damaging property.

I'm Concerned That Normal Liability Coverage Is Not Enough. Will The Company Let Me Add To It?

Probably. Many companies have an option called "umbrella" coverage. Companies offer umbrella coverage so you can increase your protection beyond the limits of your policy.

You could possibly buy an umbrella of up to $1 million to protect yourself from the possibility of a huge negligence lawsuit.

Note: Some companies offer umbrella coverage only if they insure both your car and home.

Chapter 6: Important Consumer Information

What Is The Best Way To Shop For Auto Insurance?

It's probably best to get quotes from several agents and companies. When comparing prices, be sure all coverages are the same.

Licensed agents can quote prices over the phone, and you can get many companies' quotes at their Internet sites. Remember, your price might not be firm until the company has investigated your background.

What Background Information Does An Insurer or Agent Use To Determine A Quote?

Investigating your background includes checking your driving record with the Bureau of Motor Vehicles. The company might also check your credit rating. Some companies use information contained in your credit report.

Always give complete information, including any traffic tickets or accidents you have had. The company may ask you to list them as far back as five years.

Do I Need An Insurance Agent?

Whether or not you go through an agent is completely up to you. However, a good insurance agent can be a real asset. Agents can be very helpful when you have a claim or problem with the policy. You may buy from an agent who sells policies for only one insurance company or from an "independent" agent who is licensed to sell insurance for numerous companies. Some companies sell their policies by mail or through the Internet.

Insurance Tip: If you've been satisfied with your company's service in the past, it may not be wise to jump to an unknown company just to lower your premiums. The lowest price will not be the best deal unless it is combined with good service. Ask friends and relatives about the companies and agents they have used.

What Should I Do If I Have A Dispute With My Company or Agent?

You do not need a lawyer to resolve most disputes with your insurance agent or company.

Many disputes can be solved on your own. Remember, insurance is a very competitive business. If you give the company a chance, you will generally find people who are willing if not eager to solve your problem.

If you have a dispute, follow these steps:

- Start with the agent.
- If the agent doesn't satisfy your concern, contact the company's customer service office.
- If customer service falls short of your expectations, ask about the company's procedures for appealing decisions.

If your self-help efforts fail, your next stop should be the Office of Consumer Services at the Ohio Department of Insurance. Call 1-800-686-1526.

What Happens If I Contact The Department About A Dispute?

An insurance analyst will answer your questions over the phone and explain any additional steps you should take to solve your problem. Our staff will give you honest, unbiased answers. If it sounds as if the company has done nothing wrong, we'll tell you. If you raise questions that can only be answered by the company, we'll send you a complaint form.

What Does The Department Do After It Receives A Consumer Complaint?

The Department notifies the agent or the company whenever we receive a complaint. We will send the company a copy of your complaint, asking that they resolve it or explain their side of the story.

Companies and agents are required by law to respond to the Department. Most insurance companies are cooperative in resolving consumer complaints.

What Are The Top Consumer Complaints About Auto Insurance?

- Unsatisfactory settlement offer
- Claim delay
- Claim denial
- Cancellation
- Premium & rating issues

How Are Complaint Ratios Determined?

A total of 2589 consumers complained to the Department about auto insurance in 2003.

If a complaint raises questions that require the Department to contact the agent or company, we will register it in our computer as a "complaint." A complaint represents a customer who has been unhappy with the insurance company or agent, but it does not mean that anyone has done anything wrong.

The chart on the next page shows company complaint comparisons. Listed are only those companies that received 10 or more complaints in 2003.

"Complaint ratio" gives the company's percentage of its complaints compared to its written premium in Ohio.

Example

If a company's complaint ratio is 1.00, that means it had one complaint for every $1 million of premium written in Ohio

What Is Insurance Fraud?

Insurance fraud is a crime! You commit fraud if you

- File a claim for a loss that never occurred;
- Include the right fender in a claim for an accident that involved only the left fender;
- File a claim for damages that you deliberately caused;
- Lie about your driving record, address, car, or other details on an insurance application;
- Make a deal with a chiropractor or doctor to file phony medical records with the insurance company; and/or
- Engage in other activities intended to receive unwarranted financial benefit from the insurer.

The insurance industry estimates that as many as 10 percent of all claims are fraudulent. You (and everyone!) paid for those fraudulent claims through higher insurance premiums. The Coalition Against Insurance Fraud (CAIF) estimates that insurance fraud is the equivalent of a hidden tax of about $900 per U.S. family on the cost of goods and services.

Warning! People convicted of insurance fraud go to jail!

Sample Semi-Annual Premiums

More than 200 companies actively sell automobile insurance in Ohio. Sample premiums for many of those companies are shown on the following pages.

The Department of Insurance described several different "drivers" and asked companies to quote the semi-annual (six month) premiums these drivers would be charged if applying as new customers.

The premiums were quoted in June, 2003. They will change when companies file new rates.

How To Use The Premium Charts

Companies can have hundreds of rating territories in Ohio. Premiums are listed on pages 27-36 for ten different territories:

- Akron
- Cleveland
- Shaker Heights
- "Remainder of State"
- Athens
- Columbus
- Toledo
- Cincinnati
- Dayton
- Youngstown

Guidelines

- Smaller cities and towns may resemble either Athens or "Remainder of State."
- Suburbs of Cleveland may be more like Shaker Heights than Cleveland.
- Suburbs of other cities may have premiums close to those of the cities.
- "Remainder of State" is a catch-all category that companies may use for rural areas and small towns.

Note: Don't expect to see your exact premium in the charts! Treat these sample premiums as "ballpark" numbers. Your premium will be higher or lower depending on how you differ from the specific examples.

The premiums shown on pages 27-36 assume the drivers have "clean" driving records. They have had no tickets or accidents in three years.

Each driver has a 2003 Toyota Camry with the coverage amounts shown below.

Liability

$100,000/$300,000 bodily injury
Property Damage: $100,000
Medical Payments: $5,000
Comprehensive and Collision: $500 deductible each

Sample

Semi-Annual

Premiums

The Department of Insurance asked companies for premiums on five different drivers and labeled them A through E.

- A - Married male, age 35; wife is occasional driver; 15,000 annual miles
- B - Single female, age 40; male (age 17) is occasional driver; 20 miles round-trip to work
- C - Single female, age 19; previously insured under parents' policy; 15,000 annual miles
- D - Single male, age 19; previously insured under parents' policy; 15,000 annual miles
- E - Female, age 70; pleasure driving; 10,000 annual miles

Using The Non-Standard Premium Charts (pages 37-41)

If you have a poor driving record or haven't had any insurance recently, see pages 37-41. The companies listed specialize in selling insurance to high-risk drivers.

The Department also asked companies for premiums on three other people whose driving records are not clean or whose insurance has lapsed.

- F - Married male, age 28, one speeding ticket (75 in a 55 mph zone) within the past 30 months, one DUI conviction in the past 12 months, no insurance in the past six months
- G - Single male, age 21, clean driving record, previous insurance lapsed 90 days ago
- H - Single male, age 17, lives with parents (each parent has a car), titled owner of a 1998 Honda Accord, one speeding ticket (75 in 55) in the past 12 months, liability and UM coverage only: $25,000/$50,000 BI; $25,000 PD

Chapter 7: Glossary

Different companies could have different meanings for these terms. Your policy's definitions section will explain how your insurer defines the terms you should know.

Adjuster: A person who evaluates damage and recommends how much the insurance company should pay.

Agent: A person licensed by the Ohio Department of Insurance and is appointed by the company to represent, sell and service insurance policies.

Binder: A temporary insurance contract that provides proof of coverage until you receive your policy.

Cancellation: Termination of a policy before its normal expiration date.

Claim: A request for payment on an insured loss.

Declarations Page ("Dec Page"): The page that shows your premium and coverages. Instead of sending you a new policy each year, the insurance company generally sends only a new dec page.

Deductible: The amount you must pay from your own pocket for each claim.

Endorsement: An addition to an insurance policy.

Financial Responsibility (FR): Liability insurance or a bond that promises to pay other people when you are negligent. You must show FR proof if you're stopped by a police officer or have an accident.

Gap Insurance: Insurance that pays the difference between what you owe on your auto loan and your totaled car's market value.

Insured: The person and/or property covered by an insurance policy.

Insurer: The company that provides insurance. Insurers in Ohio are licensed and regulated by the Ohio Department of Insurance.

Liability: Any legally enforceable obligation.

Liability Insurance: Insurance that pays another person for injuries to them or damage to their property.

Limit: The amount of insurance you have for a specific coverage.

Negligence/Negligent: Carelessness, fault. When your inattention or carelessness causes an accident, you are considered to have been negligent or at fault.

Premium: The amount you pay for insurance.

Subrogation: When an insurer has acquired the right to recover money from a third party.

Territory: The geographical area where a company charges the same premiums to drivers with identical characteristics. In Ohio a company's territory cannot be smaller than the city limits (e.g. everyone in Cleveland is one territory).

Questions to Ask

You want to make sure you buy the type of auto insurance you need and can afford. Make a list of your needs to compare them with the types of coverage offered by companies you are considering. Compare policies to find out why one is less expensive than another. Here are some good questions to ask when you're shopping.

- What does the auto policy cover and not cover?
- Does my age affect my rates?
- How often can my rates be changed?
- How much is the deductible?
- Who do I contact if I am involved in an accident?
- Has the company had an unusually high number of customer complaints?
- What happens when you call the company's consumer complaint number?
